Description

The Golem is the big brother of the Lynx, characterized by larger size. Ideal compromise between resistance and cutting capabilities make it suitable for heavy work in one wooded environment. The cutting edge has a drop profile, with high bevels, slightly concave edge, and the area of the tip particularly robust. The handle is comfortable and generous; the construction is all tang, with a pair of green G10 knobs fixed by screws, with a comfortable and effective braided handle pattern. Compared to the Lynx, the ring for the belt is made in the part lower end of the handle, so that it is possible set up a D-guard that connects it to the hole drilled in the lower branch of the guard, significantly increasing the safety during heavy edged use.
