The Special Forces 2 from Snugpak is a 3-season sleeping bag with a center zipper and a comfort range of about -7°C.

Description

The Special Forces 2 from Snugpak is a 3-season sleeping bag with a comfort range of about -7°C. This sleeping bag also has an incredibly light and small pack size, with a size of only about 23 x 23 cm when fully compressed. The Special Forces 2 offers all the benefits of the Softie range. The Softie® Premier filling combines the benefits of natural down with the insensitivity of synthetic fiber. It uses superfine yarns bonded with special resins to create a luxurious down feel. As a result, the synthetic fiber meets the very highest standards. Even in cold wet weather, Softie® Premier insulation remains warm, lightweight and breathable. The wind and water resistant Paratex Steelplate outer fabric and Softie® Premier fill, make the sleeping bag moisture resistant. The mummy shape design adds extra warmth and comfort; The sleeping bag also has a close-fitting hood with an adjustable drawstring for a better night's sleep, even when the temperature drops.

Snugpak's Special Forces 2 Sleeping Bag can be used on its own or combined with the Special Forces 1 to create a sleeping bag for temperatures as low as -15°C.

Temperature range Comfort: -7°C.*

Temperature range Limit: -12°C.*

*Snugpak temperature ratings are based on over 40 years of experience and customer feedback. The comfort value assumes you are sleeping in a tent on a high quality sleeping mat lightly clothed. At this outdoor temperature, the majority of users should feel comfortable and sleep well. The low temperature values are the temperatures at which sleeping bags were used by people with minimal discomfort. There are many variables that are important to a good night's sleep, including climate, altitude, fitness, and metabolism.
