ORDER CONFIRMATION

Improper use may result in injury.

- Always use the sheath during transport and storage
- Do not use the knife as a lever or pry tool
- Avoid striking the blade against metal, stone or other very hard materials
- Keep out of reach of children
- Inspect blade and coating condition regularly

Important Note on Coated Blades

The manufacturer advises avoiding food contact with worn Cerakote-coated blades. If the coating becomes visibly damaged or worn, the knife should no longer be used for food preparation.

About the Designer

Juha-Pekka Peltonen served in the Finnish Army and later in multiple UN missions, including Cyprus, Sinai, Lebanon and Kashmir. The idea behind the M95 was born from real field experience and the desire to create a robust military knife that combined Finnish knife-making tradition with modern operational requirements.

That original concept became the M95 Sissipuukko, now known internationally as the M95 Ranger Puukko.

Glossary

- Puukko: traditional Finnish utility knife known for practical cutting performance
- 80CrV2: tough carbon steel valued for resilience and field sharpening ease
- Cerakote: durable ceramic-based protective coating used for corrosion resistance and low reflectivity
- EasyLock: Peltonen sheath retention system for secure and quiet carry
